Why Packing Smart Matters

Packing your carry-on bag wisely is key to a smooth travel experience. Whether you're packing for a short trip or as a complement to your checked luggage, an efficiently packed carry-on ensures you have everything you need within easy reach, from travel documents to in-flight comfort items

By optimising your carry-on, you ensure easy access to essentials, avoid unnecessary delays, and breeze through security checkpoints.

Benefits of a Well-Packed Carry-On

- Convenience: Keep your essentials close at hand throughout your trip.
- Time-Saving: Have quick access to important items like passports, chargers, and medications.
- Peace of Mind: Be prepared for unexpected situations, such as flight delays or lost luggage.

Understanding Airline Regulations

Each airline has its own set of rules regarding carry-on luggage. Familiarising yourself with these regulations is key to ensuring your bag meets the requirements.

When it comes to measuring luggage size, airlines each have their own methods to ensure your bag fits within their guidelines (unlike economy class legroom, unfortunately).

Size and Weight Limits

- Size Restrictions: Most airlines allow a carry-on bag of around 55 x 40 x 20 cm (22 x 16 x 8 inches), but this can vary, so always check with your specific airline.
- Weight Limits: Typically between 7-10 kg (15-22 lbs). Some airlines are more stringent about enforcing these limits, so it's best to weigh your bag before heading to the airport.

There are 2 common ways airlines measure carry-ons:

- H x W x D: Most airlines use this method, requiring your bag to fit within specific dimensions, such as 22 x 14 x 9 inches—one of the most typical size limits for carry-ons.
- Linear inches: Some airlines prefer to set a single limit based on the total sum of height, width, and depth. As long as your bag's combined dimensions stay within this number, you're in the clear!

Security Guidelines

Navigating airport security can be a breeze with the right preparation. Here's how to ensure your carry-on meets security requirements.

Be Familiar with the Regulations

- Liquids Rule: Stick to the 3-1-1 rule: liquids, aerosols, gels, creams, and pastes must be in containers of 100 ml (3.4 oz) or less, all fitting into a single, clear, quart-sized plastic bag. This bag must be placed in a separate bin during screening.
- Electronics: Laptops, tablets, and other large electronics should be easily accessible. You'll need to remove these from your carry-on and place them in a separate bin for screening in most airports.
- Prohibited Items: Check the airport's website for an updated list of prohibited items. This includes sharp objects, flammable items, and certain sporting equipment.

Pack Smart for Security

- Easy Access: Place liquids, gels, and electronics in easily accessible compartments of your carry-on. This helps you quickly remove them during screening and keep the queue efficient.
- Separate Compartments: Keep essential items like your ID, boarding pass, and any valuables in separate, easily reachable pockets.
- Pre-Screening Prep: Before approaching the security line, ensure you have your boarding pass and ID ready. You may also want remove your any metals, take your coat off, etc. This speeds up the process for everyone.

Minimise the Need for Extra Screening

- Wear Minimal Metal: Avoid wearing belts, jewellery, or other metal items that might set off metal detectors. Opt for clothing and accessories that won't require additional screening.
- Shoes: Wear shoes that are easy to remove and put back on. Sneakers or slip-ons are ideal, as they speed up the process compared to boots or shoes with many laces.
- Pre-Packaged Snacks: If you're bringing snacks, keep them in their original packaging or in a clear, resealable bag to avoid additional scrutiny.

Pack Your Essentials First

Start by packing the items you'll need most during your flight. Place these in easily accessible areas of your bag.

Miles & Memories

Identification documents

Carry your passport, especially for international travel. Ensure it's valid for six months after arrival to destination. Print travel documents as a backup.

Electronics

For electronics, don't forget your phone with its charger, pack headphones, and include external batteries for extra power.

Never put your external batteries in the checked luggage

A change of clothes

Pack at least one change of clothes in your carry-on. If your checked luggage is delayed, having a fresh outfit will help you feel more comfortable on arrival before you figure out your next move.

Medication

Pack your medications in your carry-on, with enough for the trip plus a few extra days. Bring extra contact lenses and glasses as a backup.

Something warm to wear

Planes can get chilly, so pack a hoodie in your carry-on to stay comfortable, especially on long flights.

Valuables

Keep your most valuable items, such as jewellery and important documents in your carry-on. These items should be easily accessible and kept secure during your travels.

Organizing Your Carry-On

Select the Right Bag

Choose a lightweight, durable carry-on that fits your airline's size requirements. Multiple compartments are helpful for staying organised, especially for easy access to frequently needed items.

Use Packing Cubes

These help you organise clothing and other items by category (e.g., shirts, pants, socks). They keep everything neatly packed and make it easier to find what you need without rummaging through your entire bag.

Miles & Memories

Roll Your Clothes

Rolling your clothes instead of folding them can save space and reduce wrinkles. Start from one end and roll tightly. This method works especially well for casual wear like T-shirts and trousers.

Organise Your Liquids

Keep all liquids in a clear, resealable bag at the top of your carry-on for easy access during security checks. Opt for travel-sized toiletries or consider solid alternatives to maximise space.

Pack an extra set of clothes

If the worst happens and you find yourself without your checked luggage, you'll be glad you packed an extra set of clothes in your carry-on.

Leave some space for extras

Planning to shop in the airport or bring back a perishable gift? As you pack, consider leaving room in your luggage for any additional items you might need to carry on your return trip.

Wear Bulky Items

If you need to bring bulkier items like a jacket or boots, wear them onto the plane. This saves valuable space in your carry-on and keeps you warm during the flight.

Use Compression Bags

Ideal for bulkier items like jackets or sweaters. These bags reduce the volume of your clothes by removing excess air, freeing up more space in your carry-on.

FAQs

What's the difference between a personal item and a carry-on, and how do airlines define each?
Typically, you're allowed one personal item and one carry-on. A personal item is a smaller bag, like a purse, briefcase, or small backpack, that fits under the seat in front of you. A carry-on is a larger bag, such as a suitcase or duffel, that goes in the overhead bin. Airlines have specific size requirements for each, which can vary between carriers.

Can I bring a backpack as my personal item, or will it be counted as a carry-on?
You can bring a backpack as your personal item if it fits within your airline's size limits for personal items. If the backpack exceeds these limits, it will be classified as a carry-on.

What items are not allowed in my carry-on?
Prohibited items generally include sharp objects (e.g., knives, scissors), flammable substances (e.g., lighter fluid), certain sporting equipment (e.g., baseball bats), and large quantities of liquids. Always check your airline's and the Security's latest guidelines for specifics.

How do I ensure my carry-on meets airline size requirements?
Measure your carry-on before travel and compare it to the airline's size guidelines. Most airlines provide the maximum dimensions allowed for carry-ons on their websites. Use a luggage size checker tool if available, and ensure your bag fits these dimensions.

Miles & Memories

Can I bring food or beverages in my carry-on?
Yes, you can bring food and beverages, but liquids must follow the 3-1-1 rule: containers should be 100 ml (3.4 oz) or less, and all containers must fit into a single quart-sized bag. Any food or drink purchased after passing through security is usually allowed.

What should I do if my carry-on is overweight?
If your carry-on is overweight, you may need to repack or transfer items to your checked luggage. Some airlines offer options to pay for additional weight or upgrade to a larger carry-on allowance. Be sure to check your airline's policies ahead of time.

Can I store valuables in my checked luggage instead of my carry-on?
It’s recommended to keep valuables such as electronics, jewellery, and important documents in your carry-on. Checked luggage can be lost or delayed, and valuables are safer with you at all times.

What happens if my carry-on is too large to fit in the overhead bin?
If your carry-on is too large, the airline will require you to check it at the gate. This is often done at no additional charge, but policies can vary, especially on a full flight. Check with your airline if you’re concerned about this possibility.

Miles & Memories

How can I avoid having my carry-on flagged for additional screening?
To avoid additional screening, ensure your carry-on complies with all security regulations. Pack liquids in compliance with the 3-1-1 rule, keep electronics easily accessible, and avoid packing prohibited items. Being calm, organised and transparent during security checks also helps.

Are there any special considerations for travelling with medical equipment or medications?
Yes, if you're travelling with medical equipment or medications, carry them in their original packaging and have relevant documentation or a doctor's note. Inform security agents of these items during screening, and they will guide you through the process.

Can I bring duty-free items in my carry-on?
Yes, you can bring duty-free items. It is recommended that you keep them in the secure, tamper-evident bags provided by the store where you purchased them. However, it is unlikely you will be asked to open your carry-on for a screen while boarding, unless you are causing disturbances. Make sure to declare the acquried items if required by your destination's customs regulations.

Personal Items

In addition to your carry-on, most airlines permit a personal item such as a handbag, laptop bag, or small backpack. This item should fit under the seat in front of you and is a great place to store items you'll need throughout the flight.

DISCLAIMER: Before your flight, always check the airline's website for any changes to the airline's luggage specifications.
